The Pope to Workers
Little Grizzlies, Beware!
What, Nudity?
Labor's British Idea

BY ARTHUR BRISBANE

POPE PIUS yesterday, broadcasting in three languages, reminding [illegible] and capital of their [illegible] to workers. He asserts the [illegible] of the church and the [illegible] intervene in social problems [illegible] reaffirms Catholic doctrines [illegible] rights of private property and says: "It is necessary to reconstruct the whole economic system through more equitable distribution of the united proceeds of capital and labor."

The pope finds "an excessive disproportion of the commodities of life between capital and labor. Immense riches have accumulated in the hands of a few, while the proletarians have nothing but their hands and the sweat of their brows."

The pope, speaking in the courtyard of San Damaso, was heard and seen by 10,000 workers, while millions listened on the radio. He said that three words constituted his theme, "Prayer, Action and Sacrifice."

The pope, who spoke in French, German and Italian, with perfect command of each language, denounced socialism and communism. The address later was broadcast by an American priest, translated in English, which Pope Pius does not speak.

THE NEW Wall street crop of amateur grizzlies cheered again yesterday. Somebody sold 115,500 shares of Steel and knocked the price below 102. American Can dropped below 103.

Those amateur bears will regret their cheering if they fail to cover in time. There is another day coming.

GERMANY has a "nudist movement." Ladies and gentlemen, convinced that human beings don't need clothes, wander around in the open air in a state of nature. Police insist that they retire from the sight of those who prefer clothes, otherwise no interferencee.

Mr. and Mrs. Mason Merrill, Americans who investigated the nudist movement in Germany and France, and experimented with the idea in parks set aside, announce a nudist movement starting in the United States.

Our depression might excuse it partially, but whoever, in a Turkish bath, has observed his average fellow man or her fellow woman, wandering around in the steam with a towel, will hope that the movement may not last.

IN BRITAIN what labor unions say has meaning, for unions control the government.

Their latest suggestion is to nationalize Britain's steel industry, making it a great public utility.

The unions suggest a tariff be high enough to keep out foreign steel, and secure an absolute monopoly for steel public ownership.

A publicly owned steel monopoly might need that tariff. Governments outside of the United States have proved that they can run such natural monopolies as light, power, railroads, telephones, telegraphs, but they have yet to prove that publicly owned industry can compete with private industry.

Russia's success or failure in that line will be instructive.

MR. GREEN, head of the American Federation of Labor, says any attempt to reduce wages may be met by widespread strikes. The federation would probably find some concerns not displeased if their workers went out, for a while at least.

Mr. Green, one of the wisest leaders that organized labor ever had, will think carefully before encouraging strikes on any considerable scale. He knows that payrolls can not be met with good intentions and that no industry is powerful enough to resist the greater power of financial depression.

TWO WOMEN IN MARYSVILLE ESCAPE CAUGHT

Found at Former Home of One of Fugitives in Columbus.

SEARCH FOR TWO OTHERS

Posse of Officers Start Hunt in Woods Along Route 32.

By The Associated Press

COLUMBUS, O., May 16—Two of the four women inmates of Marysville state reformatory who escaped from there yesterday were captured here early today by Columbus police. They are Mrs. Marie Flesch, 23, of Dayton, and Mrs. Zelma Long Theodore of Middletown. The arrest was made at the former home of Mrs. Flesch and came shortly after 5 a. m.

The arrest came after central Ohio officers directed their search in the direction of Columbus upon the suspicion it was the objective of the women. Mrs. Theodore was held as an incorrigible at the reformatory, having made a previous escape.

Two are yet unapprehended, Miss Anna Bagdon, 20, of Lakewood, and Miss Jessie Parsons, 20, of Crooksville.

The two women told police that their two companions, Miss Parsons and Miss Bagdon were hiding in a wood along route 32. Deputy sheriffs and several automobile loads of reformatory guards took up the hunt.

Mrs. Flesch and Mrs. Theodore said they planned the escape because they were denied their visiting days. Mrs. Louise Mittendorf, superintendent of the institution, said these privileges were not denied until after she had word that an escape was planned.

Reformatory officials returned the captured fugitives to the reformatory.

Miss Bertha Cavitt was the lone officer on guard when the escape occurred. She was absolved of all blame.

GALION MAN HURT AS FLIER LEAVES RAILS

Child's Prank Blamed for Big Four Derailment Near Cincinnati.

By The Associated Press

CINCINNATI, O., May 16—A child's prank was believed by Big Four railroad officials today to have caused the derailment of a locomotive late yesterday, killing an aged woman and injuring five persons, none of them passengers.

Investigators said the engine of passenger train No. 124, enroute from Cincinnati to Columbus, left the track when it struck a spike which probably had been placed on the rails by some thoughtless child. The speeding locomotive crashed into a home at Lockland, near here, killing Mrs. Rose Earhart, 76, as she sat eating her evening meal. Her husband, Frank, 77, suffered a broken arm.

The other injured were: Clarence Lee, 61, engineer of Columbus; Fred Heard, 36, fireman of Lockland; Leon Leonard, 27, of Newport, Ky., news vendor, and James Falvey, 39, of Galion, O., baggageman. None was hurt seriously.

Big Four officials said it seemed improbable the spike was placed with the deliberate intent of wrecking the flyer, but added railroad detectives were investigating that angle. They preferred to believe, they said, that a child left it there.

The train does not stop at Lockland, usually passing through at 45 miles an hour. Witnesses said both the engineer and fireman made frantic efforts to halt the locomotive after it left the rails. They were at the posts when it came to rest on the house, turned completely around.

MRS. EMMA GUTHERY CLAIMED AT LA RUE

Wife of State Director of Agriculture Dies; Ill Three Months.

Mrs. Emma Guthery, 63, wife of I. S. Guthery, state director of agriculture, died at her home in LaRue yesterday at 8 p. m. after an illness of three months.

Mrs. Guthery was born in LaRue and was a lifelong resident of the community. She was a member of the LaRue chapter of Order of Eastern Star, of the LaRue chapter of Pythian Sisters and of the LaRue Presbyterian church.

Her death came five months after Mr. Guthery's appointment to the state position in Governor White's cabinet.

Surviving with her husband are two sons, Damon Guthery and William S. Guthery, both at home and her brothers and sisters, Aultman Raub of Pearl street, George Raub of Richfield, Pa.; Mrs. Otis Wolgamot of Oklahoma City, Okla.; Miss Susie Raub of Akron and Miss Ella Raub of LaRue.

Mrs. Guthery was born Oct. 14, 1867, to W. L. Raub, a native of Knox county, O., and Jane Baldwin Raub, a native of Marion county.

Her marriage to I. S. Guthery took place Oct. 3, 1889, in LaRue.

Funeral services will be held Monday at 2:30 p. m. at the Guthery home near LaRue, followed by burial in the LaRue cemetery.

Kitten Loses Life by Protecting Children

By The Associated Press

SACRAMENTO, Calif., May 16—Blackie, a pet kitten, was a hero in death today to George and Charles, 4-year-old twins of Mr. and Mrs. D. G. Whitman.

The kitten was mortally wounded when it interposed itself between the two children and a rabies-maddened dog yesterday.

A humane officer arriving a few minutes later found both kitten and dog dead.

ARMY REACHES ALL CLASSES

Religious and Relief Work Chief Aim of Salvation Army.

COMMUNITY FUND AGENCY

Organization Works with Groups Otherwise Untouched by Religion.

The following is one of a series of articles to acquaint readers of The Star with agencies of the Marion Community Fund which soon will ask Marionites for $73,397 for charity and welfare work during the coming year. This article deals exclusively with the Salvation Army, a fund agency.

* * *

The performance of a missionary work within the city, the teaching of Christianity and the giving of helpful and advisory care in home management, are listed among the services of the Salvation Army in Marion. The army, a Community Fund agency, lists as its scope and purpose an endeavor to bring the claims of the Gospel to bear upon those not reached by any other denomination—the unchurched, the underprivileged and the poor and needy of the city.

Reaches All

The charitable program of the army is used to bring about the regeneration of the individual or family, and the stimulation of their interest in the church and community life. It not only aims at the restoration of the fallen, but employs its methods of prevention in the training of young people.

Financed by the Community Fund, the army last year reached 16,222 persons in its various meetings. Seventy-four persons were converted, 303 indoor and 147 open air meetings held at which the word of God was preached.

The local army carried on the task of the Salvation Army in every city, that of giving shelter to transients. Deserving transients housed at the Salvation Army building on north State street numbered 1,679 during the last year, and meals were given 1,681. Still others were given garments and shoes, all at a cost of $1,224.75.

Relief Program

Until last December, the Salvation Army did a sizeable volume of relief work in the city, giving various forms of relief to 1,339 persons at a total cost of $766.50. This relief included the distribution of 250 bushels of coal, 30 pieces of furniture, 694 garments, 70 pairs of shoes, 100 baskets of groceries, and 1,098 loaves of bread.

Christmas was made an occasion for happiness for 600 persons when the army distributed 80 Christmas baskets, 250 toys and 400 treats for children, at a total cost of $205.

Last year the army carried on its many activities on a budget of $3,610 and this year is asking for the same amount.

Affairs of the Salvation Army in Marion are conducted by Ensign Walter Shackleford, who has charge of all senior meetings at the army headquarters, and who supervises activities of the young people reached by the organization.

NAME QUEEN

Controversy over election of a May queen at Akron university, Akron, O., ended yesterday when Miss Helen McGrath of Akron was chosen after the student body had refused to restore the name of Miss Ellen Palmer (pictured above) to the ballot. It was charged that in a previous vote the ballot box was stuffed by Ray Bliss (bottom picture) in Miss Palmer's favor. Bliss, a senior at the college, was suspended. Miss McGrath was chosen May queen in a special election yesterday, when she received 280 out of 526 votes.

STEEL PLANT STRIKE ENDS

1,600 Mansfield Men Return to Work at Old Wage Scale.

PAY CUTS ARE CANCELLED

By The Associated Press

MANSFIELD, O., May 16—The strike of 1,600 employes of the Empire Steel corporation was over today and company officials said the plant would be in full operation by nightfall.

The employes agreed to go back to work late yesterday after the company rescinded wage cuts amounting to 15 per cent announced since April 30. They compromised on other points and left others to be worked out by joint committees representing the workers and the company.

The walkout started last Tuesday, when the company announced a cut of five per cent in addition to a previous 10 per cent. The last cut was cancelled at once, but the workmen refused to return to their posts until the former scale was restored.

The men accepted a scale of 36 cents an hour, four cents higher than the old rate but four cents less than they had demanded, for unskilled laborers. Questions yet to be settled are demands that wages be figured on a bimonthly scale based on selling prices of steel, that day work be limited to 10 hours a shift and night work to 12.

Carl Henkel, president of the corporation, who conferred with the strikers' committee, said: "In restoring the wage scale of April 30, the corporation expects to profit by a higher degree of efficiency from the men. There is no doubt that contented employes are better workers."

Workmen praised the treatment they had received in the controversy and pickets were withdrawn.

28 HUGE SHIPS FLY OVER CITY

Planes Pass Here Enroute to Air Maneuvers at Dayton Field.

MARION IS "BOMBARDED"

Business Section Is Target for Cotton Missiles Dropped by Pilots.

Thoughts of Marionites this morning were directed to the aerial sham battle centering around Fairfield Air Depot at Dayton this morning when 28 large army bombers flew over the city on their way to the Dayton field.

Drop Two "Bombs"

The bombers demonstrated their skill, and at the same time left Marionites a souvenir of the event by dropping two large cotton "bombs" in the yard of the St. Paul's Episcopal church at Center and High streets and in front of the H. Schaffner Furniture Co. The "bombs" were a yard long, four inches in diameter, and carried the brief message "Second bombardment group, United States Army, Langley Field, Va." One of the souvenirs is now in possession of Rev. S. S. Hardy, pastor of the St. Paul's church.

One of the huge bombers, weighing two tons without a load, was landed on Marion airport by Lt. J. M. Armond and his crew of three men from Columbus this morning. They had flown north to meet the other 27 bound for the Dayton port from Cleveland where they had spent the night. Met by strong headwinds, the planes moved slowly over the city. All were Keystone bombers, B-3-A, similar to the plane which landed here.

Get Battle Details

Meantime, exacting training flights to accustom pilots and squadron commanders with maneuvers they will execute in their "defense" of Chicago and the east were on the schdule for the army air corps massed at Fairfield Air Depot at Dayton today, according to Associated Press dispatches. Marion, on the northeastern fringe of the "battle area," may see a part of the maneuvers.

Four hundred combat planes were ordered in the air over various parts of Ohio during the afternoon. Columbus was designated as the eastern boundary line for the training flights, Cincinnati as the southern, and Indianapolis as the western boundary.

During the morning two pursuit squadrons of the 36th Air Squadron, Selfridge Field, Mich., and the 95th Squadron of the 20th Pursuit group were designated to go through maneuvers with bombers and attack groups to determine which squadron should be given an unnamed mission. Both squadrons are commanded by World war aces, the former by Capt. Victor Strahn and the latter by Capt. Frank Hunter.

Several ships of the second bombardment group which were forced to put up at distant cities last night were expected today.

Ninety-nine national guard planes arrived from eastern states last night.

Governor George White will leave Port Columbus late today by airplane for Dayton, where he will observe the army air maneuvers. The governor will be accompanied by Adjutant General Frank D. Henderson, Federal Judge Benson W. Hough and Major Thomas J. Herbert, O. N. G.

First Group of Birds Released Today from Cages at Freight House

With a whirring and flapping of wings, 805 homing pigeons, the property of 11 Cleveland pigeon clubs, were released at noon today for their semi-annual race back to their home city.

Last Saturday and Sunday the birds were liberated at Greenwich. They flew to Cleveland in 55 minutes, a distance of 54 miles. The birds were shipped here from Cleveland this morning.

Aimee Arrives

(Will Rogers Special)

BEVERLY HILLS, Calif., May 16—I guess our country holds the record for dumbness. The pope spoke to the world this morning in three languages and we didn't understand a one of 'em, but the minute he finished and the local stations got back to selling corn salve and pyorrhea tooth paste, we were right up our intellectual alley again.

A real prince of Japan will visit Los Angeles today, but he picked a bad time to come, for on the same day Aimee gets in here from one of her pilgrimages and any time Aimee returns home from anywhere, even if it's just from the desert, why this town goes practically gaga.

LADDER GOOD 'LONG SHOT'

Equipoise, Winter Book Favorite, Scratched; 12 Horses Likely To Start.

BY ALAN GOULD
Associated Press Sports Editor

LOUISVILLE, Ky., May 16—Fair weather, a fast track and a horse race that may turn out to be a record-breaker furnished the salient prospects today for the fifty-seventh running of the Kentucky derby over the historic route at Churchill Downs, famous for its thoroughbred duels since Aristides, the "little red horse," won the first blue grass classic from Volcano in 1875.

Not more than 12 of the 15 entries were slated to parade to the post shortly after 6 p. m. (Marion time) and wage the battle of speed, courage and stamina over a mile and a quarter for American three-year-old supremacy, the victor's price of approximately $50,000 and the roaring acclaim of the crowd.

Equipoise, winter book favorite to win the derby was officially scratched late in the afternoon by his owner, Harry Payne Whitney. The prospects were that Up, owned by Mrs. J. N. Crofton, would also be scratched, leaving 12 horses to start the race.

May Set Track Record

Not since Bubbling Over carried the silks of Col. E. R. Bradley to victory in 1926 has the historic racing strip been dry and fast. For three years rain has deluged the proceedings. Consequently, turfmen today viewed the turn in weather luck as conductive to a new record by the winner, especially if the drive down the stretch measures up to its thrilling possibilities.

The derby record of 2:03 2-5 for the mile and a quarter, set by old Rosebud in 1914, as well as perhaps the world's track record of 2:00, made by the six-year-old Whiskbroom II at Belmont Park, New York, in 1913, may be subjected to severe pressure, in the opinion of those who regard this year's derby field as one of the best of post-war times.

Twenty Grand Favorite

Always on the lookout for an outsider to "play," the eastern talent, while backing Twenty Grand and Greentree stable entry at 2 to 1, Mate at 5 to 2, regarded Walter J. Salmon's Ladder, which finished third in the Preakness, as a good "long shot." Western hopes, although placed mainly on the speedy Kentucky colt, Pittsburgher, included a "dark horse" in Insco, owned by Griffin Watkins of Chicago. Harry Hatch's Boys Howdy was a "hot" stable favorite to spring an upset.

Louisville and the hardboots from surrounding Kentucky turned out in festival spirit for its annual thoroughbred carnival, even though the income crowds were far below usual numbers. Close to 60,000 were expected to witness the big race.

Vice-President at Race

Vice-President Charles Curtis, the governors of a half-dozen states, leaders of wealth and fashion from all parts of the country joined the gathering of the turf clans for one of the most colorful of all American sporting events.

Two national networks arranged to broadcast the details, from the time the horses were saddled in the paddock until one of them galloped to victory.

Just Things

—BY EDNA S. DUTTON—

Powder 'n Paint

JUST when do these young girls start to use powder, rouge and lipstick and when will they quit? This was the question "mooted" and augmented in a group of the fairer sex recently. Of course some remember when themselves and a few others started, being almost what might be called pioneers. At least they went a long ways towards giving the cosmetic boys a good start in the business. Some can recall back in those "why gild the lily days" when to be caught with your locks in kid curlers or even have it known (they might have their suspicions mind you) that those stiff-looking ringlets were anything but a gift, was as bad as having the collector for the missionary box catch you playing for a dime on the corner. And to powder and paint,—well, everybody knew just where you were headed for and no wonder your parents were graying with age. True, they may have been more themselves in those good old days when you stayed pale because Nature intended you should be but don't you think a little gilding helps out in a big way?

* * *

Just Folks

ISN'T it funny how a big accident or some event out of the ordinary routine of everyday affairs does away with any thought of having to be introduced before speaking to the party standing on your toes or whose shoulder makes a fine backwall to fight the crowd that's crowding you? At the train smashup over at Martel the other evening, well everybody told everybody else what they knew about the wreck and sundry affairs. I talked to a woman from miles away who "just dropped everything right in the midst of her housecleaning and came the way she was because her husband, etc., etc., and when she paused to get her breath I beat her to it and told my story. And that's the way that was

Your Alumni

YOU'RE going to the alumni meeting this year. Of course you are. It really doesn't matter where you're going back to, but it's a pretty good guess you'll be there. There's something that makes you begin to wonder, days ahead, if so and so will be there, and sets you hoping that this year at least half of the old gang makes it. And then you decide that you will write that letter to so and so who couldn't make it because the kids had the whooping cough, but heck, you won't.

Mad Pursuit

CHAPTER 24

Does Her Life Matter?

T[illegible] pearly mornings in the [illegible] room and see the horse chestnut tree outside her window to hear the birds, was happiness enough, Nora thought. She [illegible] listening to the household stirring. These soft steps were Fran's [illegible] on the stairs to put the [illegible] on the stove, and [illegible] hear Alice's shrill sweet [illegible] the milkman rattling around [illegible] the back door. The beginning of another day. And at the end she would see Jon.

Late that afternoon as they were coming home together, Fran said:

"How did you know?"

"You're happy, Nora?"

As though the secret did not shine from Nora's eyes and glow through her voice and lilt in her walk, Fran thought without answering.

"Julian told me he's going away for a few days but when he comes back he's going to make our fortune," Nora said as an excuse for her rapture, "then Aunt Em will never need to give another music lesson and you and Fergus . . ."

Fran's face was more than ever strained and thin these days. She answered, "If things only came out that way. But I have a husband somewhere. And two children. And there are bills and bills and bills, and Fergus—makes enough to scrape along on."

They had stopped in at the grocers' and as they came out Fran began to cough. She took her handkerchief away from her lips. She looked at it with sudden terror.

Nora clutched her arm.

"Fran, tell me!"

"It's nothing," Fran whispered, clinging to the railing.

"Fran—it was—"

Fran had the handkerchief convulsively clutched in her hand with the terrible red blot on it.

"Yes, it's that. Nora, you won't tell Mother?" she said when she could speak again.

"Oh, Fran!" Nora gasped.

Her whole body was as weak as water.

"I went to the doctor— not Fergus—I didn't dare let him know. And he said—he said," Fran went on, still leaning against the railing, "that I must go away. To the mountains. He advised Arizona. He might as well have told me to go to the mountains of the moon."

They walked on through the burning heat of the sultry July afternoon.

Brutal realities poking their heads up through the wonder of her dreams. But this couldn't happen to Fran. It couldn't."

"Fran couldn't you go away? We could manage with the children. I could get home earlier, I think," Nora was considering how she could scrimp and save. "And I'll ask old Dusenbury for more money. We can manage."

"But haven't you seen," Fran asked with a quietness that was more desperate than anything she had yet said, "that Mother isn't as strong as she was? I don't know how much longer she'll be able to keep it up."

"But Hallie's writing now," Nora cried, clutching at a straw.

"Hallie's last story came back."

They said nothing more the rest of the way home. The torrid summer sunshine, the pavements that seemed to burn the soles of their feet, the little patches of grass in front of the houses on Dove street seemed to blacken before Nora's discouraged eyes.

"But there must be some way out, Fran!" Nora whispered.

"There should be," Fran answered through pale lips, "but I can't find it."

Nora needed her father now to reassure her that their fortune would be made. But when she climbed to the attic room she found that he was out. And on A purple bill that seemed to top- his bureau was one of his pictures. ple toward an impossible blue river with a hot red house beside it. She could not bear to look at it. Julian thought he could sell pictures like this!

But there must be some way out. There must be. Jon . . . she longed to see him, to feel the reassurance of his gayety.

The others were sitting out under the horse chestnut tree when Nora went to Fergus' office. It was the first time she had ever gone in of her own accord. She sat in the tiny waiting room with its hard wooden chairs against the walls, staring at the bowl of petunias that Fran had doubtless picked for him. Nora's turn came at last. Fergus asked her to sit down and Nora felt here and now she would find the way out. He listened while she told him about Fran. His bent head did not even move. But when at last he lifted his eyes she saw such anguish there, that her own lips quivered.

"You will do something, won't you? You will save her?"

He walked over to the window and looked down into the hot street.

"I've been cudgelling my brain to find a way out," he said at last. "Fran has been getting so thin. I told her she must get away. But she wouldn't leave the children."

Nora was on her feet. She cried fiercely:

"It's all so horribly unjust. Your life, your very happiness, depends on money!"

He turned about and began to walk up and down his office. He did not seem to hear her.

"There's a sanatorium up in the mountains. The doctor who runs it is a friend of mine. I think I could get Fran in there."

"But the money—"

"Well, I've been saving to go to Germany," he told her. "Not that that matters. Not that anything matters.

In all the time that she had known him, Nora had never seen Fergus anything but hopeful. How patient he had been when the baby was burned—faithful always! And now that Fran had to go away, he would be willing to sacrifice for her the sum he had wrenched from his poverty. Her heart was stirred in admiration as she stood there waiting for Fergus to continue.

"But there's another thing," he went on, "Hallie won't be able to care for the children. And her mother is doing all she can now."

Nora sat down suddenly. For he was watching her now. She twisted about in the chair and laid her cheek against its back. She could not take care of Dickie and Alice. He couldn't ask her to do that. At any other time. But not now. Not now.

"Well?" Fergus said.

He was waiting for her answer; and she felt torn in two. She and Jon were going to be married. At once. As soon as her father's show was launched. They were going away without a word to anyone. She had to get away from this cramped and pitiful red brick house. She forgot at that moment all the times they had laughed together and planned together, flung out their dreams, shared their disappointments.

No, she could not stay here now. Life was growing too bitter in the red brick house, Fergus stood there waiting for her answer his velvety dark brows drawn together, his eyes on her clasped hands. But she must be free. It was her life and she would not sacrifice it. Sacrifice was an outworn ideal. After all what did she owe to them? They had taken her in when she came home, alone, but they would have taken in any stranger.

"You know what it will mean, don't you?" Fergus' voice was harsh as he went relentlessly on driving in the truth. "You'll have to give up much that you have now. Other friends perhaps. But I'll help you all I can."

"I can't do it," she cried. "I can't! I don't care what you think of me. I know I'm selfish. But it's my life and I'm going to live it."

He smiled a little wistfully as he continued to look at her.

"Your life?" he asked. "Does it matter so much?"

"It matters to me. Dreadfully I won't be tied down. I won't be an old maid in this old house, always remembering what I might have had. It isn't my fault, is it, that this all happened? I'm going to be happy and nothing—nothing can stop me."

To Be Continued.

"Heart of a Wife"

BY ADELE GARRISON

The Mysterious Chinese Message.

THE rice paper which Mr. Ticer had found pinned to the cushion of my automobile was of flaming red, while the characters upon it were of that blue black which is supposed to be the property of the raven's wing, and the hair of Irish colleens. But it was not of beautiful girls nor yet of birds I was thinking as my shrinking fingers unfolded the paper. All my mentality was focused upon the conviction that sometime, somewhere I had seen the characters of the superscription, alien though they were to anything I ever had known or studied.

Few were the characters upon the outside of the paper, and I reasoned that perhaps they stood out so starkly as to set my imagination working. But the impression persisted, and when I looked upon the inner pages, and saw that at the head, apart from the letter, for such I judged the thing to be, the same characters were repeated, the sense of familiarity grew stronger.

I spread out the paper, finding fortunately that it was written in such a manner that I could compare the superscription upon the outside with the salutation if such it were upon the inside. There were more characters upon the heading, but among them I soon found the group which with rising excitement I decided was a replica of the superscription.

The aroma of the coffee came reproachfully to my nostrils, and picturing hospitable Mrs. Ticer's dismay if she should find that I had not partaken of the things she had prepared I laid the paper down, drank a cup of the coffee and ate one of her biscuits. I knew that I could square my neglect of the doughnuts by begging some to take home to Junior and to Roderick, a request which always pleases her mightily. But I found it hard enough to choke the biscuit down and swallow the coffee, although ordinarily I never slight a culinary offering of my negihbor. The inscription upon the paper obsessed me. I wanted to determine whether or not the characters which had haunting familiarity for me appeared anywhere else in the missive.

When I took up the paper again, I went over it carefully two or three times, and at last I found that at least twice in the body of the letter—for such I judged the paper to be—appeared the characters which I had singled out. It did not take the brain of a Sherlock to deduce that these represented a name, for I knew of the Oriental habit of formally repeating the name of the recipient of a letter several times during its context.

But what name? Could it be my own? Was this mysterious message, evidently meant to be found by me, directed to me? I mulled over the suggestion, then discarded it as even more bizzarre than the method of the writer of the letter in making sure that it would fall into my hands. The Chinese are a wily people, and the men who had sent me the demand for Marion's lock box were evidently as keen as they were unscrupulous. They would know that I had no knowledge which would enable me to read the letter, and that furthermore, I would not run the risk of disclosing the secret of the box by calling in the aid of some strange Chinese to decipher the letter.

Then to whom was it addressed, and why was it put into my car? Or was the whole thing simply a cleverly planned hoax, designed to frighten me, and to let me know that despite the precautions my father had taken against them, the Chinese were still to be reckoned with.

I put the letter down beside me, and began groping through my memory pictures to see which one of them would reflect the group of characters in superscription and body which were so hauntingly familiar to me. I wondered if I were losing the remarkable photographic memory which my mother had discovered in me when I was a tiny child, and which she had trained so carefully that she had made it a most valuable asset to me. Nowhere in the mental card index where from childhood I have filed my impressions, could I find a trace of those cryptic characters.

Of course the first memory which had come to me was that of the only Chinese I ever had known, Lee Chow, high-born Chinese friend of Hugh Grantland, who because of the plots against his life in his native land had for years masqueraded as Hugh's faithful servant. If only Lee Chow were in the——with a little shiver I realised that I almost had thought "in the land of the living." But I reflected despondently, I had no means of knowing whether indeed he and Hugh Grantland, the most faithful friend any human being possessed, were living or dead. The inexplicable silence of Hugh for so many months, the brazen reappearance in Mary's life of Jack Leslie who, I knew, would never have dared to come back to America were Hugh not dead or so far away that his ultimate return was problematical, these things had filled my heart with forebodings of the worst. My pulses jumped excitedly. Could it be possible that this letter—the direction of my thoughts was changed as swiftly as if someone had thrown a mental switch. For slowly, noiselessly, against the vines that framed the window opposite me, I saw a face rising.

A Story of Humorous Boyhood Adventure

By JUDD MORTIMER LEWIS

SATURDAY. The whole week has been bright and bammy, so I thought it was saving up all the rain so we could have it on Saturday, but this morning was bright and bammy too. I got out of bed and opened up the window to let Jubilee down and there was a redbird setting on the peak of Farrel's house and it tipped up its head and looked at me so funny that I dodged back and put on my short britches before I let Jubilee down. I don't like to be looked at when I am in my shirt tail, but by the time I got to the window again the bluebird had flew away, but I left my britches on just the same.

When I had turned out my cows and fed my face and cleaned my stable we were going to hike out after our cows but Feeble who was hanging on the acting pole by her toes hollered that we ought to go over to the school and ast how Mush's wife was, and just then Maggie, the girl that got fascinated on her leg where it wouldn't show, pushed her toes off the acting pole and she landed on her bean, and I asked her if she really thought we ought to go and ast how Mush's wife was, and she said we ought to, and that we ought to [illegible] and find out how she [illegible] wear stocks.

When we got [illegible]

Then all at once the Lost Bag of Tripe sicked his dog at the cows, and that started our dogs and that started the cows and away they went.

Feeble hollered for us to stop her but we couldn't, and it was a good thing the rope was tied tight, for she had to hang onto it all the way to the pasture, but she [illegible] when the cows stopped [illegible] ture gate, and after [illegible] in the pasture we [illegible] wildflowers or [illegible] we could find [illegible] bowlegged [illegible] why she [illegible] and I [illegible]

Sports Editor, The Star

Evidences of increased strength on the part of several teams were given yesterday as the Commercial league inaugurated its 1931 recreation baseball season with a trio of games. A fourth game, originally scheduled for the same day was postponed

The Kappas, league champions in 1930, were the only team that did not face a severe test in the first game. The champs waded through Wesley Juniors with little difficulty, setting the league newcomers down to the tune of 14 to 1.

Serv-U-Wel Hits Snag

The Serv-U-Wel grocers ran into some plenty tough opposition in the greatly improved Company B outfit. The grocers finally managed to win the game by a single run margin but not without a hard fight. The Prospect Firemen, one of the strongest teams in the league last year, were forced the limit to gain a victory over the Erie Traffic club.

The Company B soldiers, with Edler occupying the mound gave Bert Curtis' Serv-U-Wel grocers a tough game from start to finish. Edler was stingy with his hits, allowing the Grocers only six safe bingles, while the Company B batters got to Somerlot, Serv-U-Wel hurler for one more. The fielding of both teams was nearly perfect

It took until the last half of the seventh inning for the Grocers to break the 3-3 tie with the Soldiers Steinmetz banged a triple out as the second man at bat in the Grocers half of the final frame and scored the winning run on an outfield fly.

Erie Blows Up

The Erie Traffic club battled Prospect on even terms until the fifth and sixth innings when the Firemen collected all seven of their runs. The Railroaders added one run to its total in the fifth, sixth and seventh but couldn't overcome the big advantage gained by Prospect in the two inning spree.

The Kappas jumped on the offerings of two Wesley Junior hurlers with gusto, banging the ball all over the lot to gain an easy 14 to 1 victory. Poor support allowed a lot of unearned runs to be scored off Cluff, the starting Wesley pitcher.

The batteries and scores by innings:

Kappas	315 302—14
Wesley Juniors	000 100— 1

Kappas, Rank, Zuspan and Hinklin; Wesley, Cluff, Thompson and Culp.

MATMEN TO SETTLE RING DIFFERENCES IN EIGHT ROUND FIGHT

Monday Card Principals Can't Agree Without Gloves, Will Try with Them.

Do wrestlers made good fighters? That's the question that will be answered for fans here next Monday night when two of the scrappy mat men meet in a 10-round main-go match featuring a mixed card.

When Ray Carpenter and Dug Marcelle climb into the ring at the Steam Shovel gym fans will see a "natural" which was the outgrowth of a wrestling card here this week.

Carpenter, inclined to be hot headed, thought he was getting a raw deal when he was disqualified after chasing Marcelle out of the ring. He insisted that Marcelle left the ring every time he got in danger. And so the boys talked back to each other until both were ready to defend their honor with the gloves.

Marcelle seemed willing enough to take a crack at it for he claims to have had several years' experience. Carpenter denies any experience and always seems able to take care of himself.

Whether the boys will revert to type and dash out of the ring in the pinches is not known. The gloves will prevent them from wrestling unless they can develop some new holds with their legs.

The semi-final will be a wrestling match between Frank Higgins and Dick Leaver. Phil O'Dowd of Columbus will meet Johnny Gerry of Marion in a six-round fight and the curtain raiser will be a wrestling match between Ray Hamilton of Marion and Carl Beightler of Marysville.

LARRY FRENCH HURLS PIRATES TO 3-2 WIN OVER NEW YORK NINE

Brooklyn Ralies Late To Defeat Chicago Bruins, 6-4; Senators Win.

BY HUGH S. FULLERTON, JR.
Associated Press Sports Writer

Larry French, Pittsburgh left hander, has a little repetition of history to talk about.

Two years ago, French faced the New York Giants in his debut as a major league pitcher. After a great struggle, the Pirates won in the tenth, 3 to 2, when Pie Traynor singled to drive in the winning run. Yesterday Larry made his first New York appearance of the 1931 season in New York and battled Clarence Mitchell of the Giants to a 2-2 standstill in the regular nine innings. Then in the tenth George Grantham's grounder hit first base and bounded away for a double and Traynor rapped a single to center, bringing in a run that spelled a 3-2 victory.

The Phillies also did a little duplicating but for them it meant only a double loss to the Cincinnati Reds in a double header. Chuck Klein hit a pair of homers in the second game and the Phils scored five runs in each clash but the final scores were 10 to 5 and 7 to 5 in favor of Cincinnati. The double victory made it three straight for the Reds and five victories in all

Brooklyn Wins 6-4

In Brooklyn, Pea Ridge Day started pitching in the first inning after the Chicago Cubs had knocked Babe Phelps from the mound and pitched nine good innings. The Robins recovered when Del Bissonette hit a homer in the fourth and scored four runs for a 6-4 triumph.

The St. Louis-Boston series became a total loss when the third straight game was postponed.

All but one of the numerous winning and losing streaks in the American league continued unchanged. The New York Yankees were halted after five victories when George Uhle, making his first start of the year, shut them out with five hits to give Detroit a 2 o 0 victory.

Cleveland Bumped Again

The league leading Athletics won their seventh in a row, beating Cleveland 4 to 0 behind Ed Rommel's fine pitching. Clint Brown kept pace with Rommel for six innings but the A's came through to score all their runs in the last three. It was Cleveland's seventh straight defeat. The Chicago White Sox scored eight runs against Boston but made an equal number of errors and also lost their seventh in succession. The Boston Red Sox took the lead in the third with the aid of three errors and finished ahead by a 12-8 count.

Walter Stewart of the St. Louis Browns, who stopped Washington five straight times last season, found this year's Senators a different proposition. The Browns gave him a good lead but he lost it suddenly in the eighth when Washington scored five runs to win 8 to 5. Goose Goslin came out of a hitting slump to get the only American league homer of the day.

RALLY BEATS ASHLAND

ASHLAND, O., May 16—A five run rally in the sixth inning enabled Heidelberg to defeat Ashland, 8 to 6, in a loosely played baseball game here yesterday.

CHICAGO, May 16—That annual bitter series between St. Paul and Minneapolis, the alpha and omega of American association standings today, has opened with the omega one up on the alpha.

The Saints, leading the Thomas Jefferson Hickey league, found the last place Millers in a belligerent mood yesterday and took a 10 to 4 beating from Mike Kelley's entrant.

Milwaukee went in for distance hitting and used three triples, a like number of doubles and a home run, to pound out an 11 to 7 victory over Kansas City.

LOUGHRAN AGAIN I HEAVY SPOTLIGHT B WIN OVER CAMPOL

Former Lightweight Champ Hammers Argentine Giant All Over Arena.

By The Associated Press
BY HERBERT W. BARKER

NEW YORK, May 16—Back into the front rank of the heavyweight brigade today strode Philadelphia's giant killer, Tomm Loughran, former king of all th 175-pounders.

He spotted Victorio Campol nearly 50 pounds in weight an seven inches in height and the did everything but knock out th South American giant in their 1 round bout in Madison Square garden last night. Tommy receive the unanimous verdict of the referee and two judges and an ovation from the crowd of 10,000

Back in Spotlight

The victory put Loughran back in the high place he held in th heavyweight picture before he was stopped by Jack Sharkey two year ago. He now must be given equa consideration with Sharkey, Ma Schmeling and young Striblin and probably will figure in on of the big outdoor heavyweigh shows this summer.

Campolo seems to have lost hi chance of edging into the picture He made a sorry showing agains the nimble, smart Loughran an at the end was much more tire than his little conqueror

Caught napping by Campolo opening rush, Tommy took plent of body punishment throughout th opening stanza. That round, an the ninth, were the only ones tha Campolo won.

Loughran Hits Hard

Campolo had been labelled heavy right hand puncher bu Tommy took his best punches without wavering perceptibly. An Tommy, notoriously one of th lightest hitters in the business several times nearly floored th giant with straight rights tha landed on Campolo's chin h floundered in.

In the eighth round, the rival collided head-on and Loughra came out with a deep cut over hi left eye.

Blood poured from the wound a Campolo carried the fight to th Philadelphian in the ninth roun and Tommy took a bad beating before the bell came to his rescu In the last round he drew bloo from Campolo's nose with a har right just before the final bell.

Lower's Pharmacy,
W. Center and Leader Sts.,
Marion, Ohio.

Dear Sir:

I have been a sufferer from ulceration and irritation of the stomach and bowels for 20 years. I have tried all remedies that I have heard about, with slight improvement.

Sometime ago, my attention was called to Yellow Root & Clay which I have consistently used. I have taken five bottles and can say that I feel that I am cured of the dreadful malady that afflicted me.

I live at 394 Olney av., Marion, and am employed as a toolmaker at the Marion Steam Shovel Co. I will gladly verify this testimonial upon request.

(Signed) H. B. Jones.

This is one of many encouraging reports received from those to whom we have sold Yellow Root & Clay. If you are a sufferer from Ulcers irritation or colitis, try this really wonderful remedy.

GRAINS DROP AFTER RALLY

Reported Crop Decrease Fails To Exert Bullish Influence on Price.

By The Associated Press

CHICAGO, May 16 — Grains turned downward today after a show of firmness at the start. Estimates that Canadian wheat acreage would show 12 per cent decrease failed to exert more than a transient bullish influence as against reports that domestic winter wheat prospects were almost perfect. Sarting unchanged to ¼ cent higher, wheat afterward receded. Corn opened ¼ off to ¼ up and subsequently declined

Crop observers reported winter wheat conditions throughout Texas, Oklahoma, Kansas and Nebraska as the most promising in years, with a bumper harvest expected. New unofficial estimates of winter wheat production both for Texas and Oklahoma were 55,000,000 to 60,000,000 bushels, 200,000,000 for Kansas and 65,000,000 to 70,000,000 for Nebraska. Temporarily moisture shortage in Canada and decreased acreage of spring wheat each side of the Canadian boundary was largely ignored.

Forecasts of mostly fair weather in Canada, pointing to continuance of drouth, brought about but slight rallies in wheat. Liverpool dispatches said United States winter wheat was freely offered abroad. Other advices indicated that resellers' quotations in Europe were cheaper than prices asked from this side of the Atlantic. Corn and oats sympathized with wheat setbacks.

Provisions lacked support.

LABOR SILENT

Officials Apparently Still Opposed to Slashing Wage Standards.

By The Associated Press

WASHINGTON, May 16—Despite official silence on labor's warning that strikes may oppose wage cuts, the administration apparently has not abandoned its belief in the soundness of efforts to maintain present living standards.

President Hoover is watching closely reactions to the statement by President William Green of the American Federation of Labor that workers "would be fully justified in resisting attempts to reduce wages even to the extent of striking."

The administration believes, however, that wage levels generally have not declined, although hours of work have been shortened in some industries. Significance has been attached to reports that William Green discussed the question with government officials before issuing his strike dictum.

AWAIT HOME-GROWN GARDEN PRODUCE

Vegetables from Marion County Farms Soon To Be on Market Counters.

With practically the entire demand for both fruits and vegetables being supplied by shipped in stock but with consumers looking forward to home grown varieties, a sort of between-season inactivity prevailed in the markets this week.

Price changes were few and dealers experienced no difficulty in obtaining ample supplies. Home grown asparagus which came on the market in slightly larger quantities this week, and shallots, were the only home grown vegetables being offered by dealers. Home grown asparagus was finding a ready market at 10 cents straight while California varieties were selling at 10 cents or three bunches for 25 cents. Shallots were extremely plentiful and found a fairly ready market at three bunches for 10 cents and in some cases five bunches for a dime.

Alabama strawberries continue to supply the bulk of the demand although a few Georgia berries were coming on the markets this week. The price showed no change during the week. Good quality berries sold at from 25 to 30 cents a quart and the choice stock in pint boxes at from 15 to 20 cents a pint.

The demand for cantaloupe on the local markets has been conspicious by its absence. Dealers were carrying a few early in the week that moved slow at from 20 to 25 cents each. The end of week found a few more on the market but dealers report a slow demand Warmer weather is expected to stimulate buying of melons.

An advance of one cent in butter prices yesterday with prospects of a further advance and with an advance in eggs also being anticipated by dealers, the butter and egg market showed but little activity during the week. Butter was being quoted Friday at from 31 to 25 cents, eggs from 18 to 25 cents.

The Stars Say—

For Sunday, May 17

SUNDAY'S horoscope holds excellent testimonies for affairs of church and clergy and also for all social romantic and cultural activities. There may be substantial reward or recognition for earnest service and fidelity, but the finances should be safeguarded from sudden loss or peculiar hazards.

Those whose birthday it is are on the eve of a year of definite recognition of industry, fidelity and hard work, with probable promotion and advancement of personal prestige or favoritism. But the finances should be protected from a peculiar peril or sudden loss. Take no chances. Private matters thrive. A child born on this day should be steady, industrious, practical, and at the same time have social graces and culture. All should lead to stable places, but either the ambitions or the finances may have a sudden reversal unless wisely fortified.

For Monday, May 18

MONDAY'S astrological forecast is a generally adverse and hostile one, with perils and impediments arising from many angles There will be a tendency to meet these conditions with restless and disturbed energies, and this may not be powerful enough to sidestep the prevailing frustrating forces. Under the circumstances it would be well to conserve the energies and to work along lines of least resistance.

Those whose birthday it is are confronted by a year in which much depends upon their own concentrated abilities wisely directed. There may be many vexations, or positions and definite obstacles, which it will take much ability and resolution to offset. With these there may be fair success, at best. A child born on this day should be talented and versatile but should be given an education and training fitting it to surmount many obstacles in life and to stick to its course

Walking in the country is spoiled by barking dogs you are afraid of.

Hug "Occupational" Accident? Industrial Board Will Decide

By The Associated Press

COLUMBUS, O., May 16 — One hug may result in a broken rib, and such an injury can be classed as "occupational."

So ruled the state industrial commission yesterday.

The case was that a woman employe of the Loose-Wiles Biscuit Co. of Dayton. It seems the woman, while going from one job to another in the plant, was seized by a male employe, and hugged until one rib cracked The commission held the hug was a "hazard" of the woman's employment, and that she should be given compensation. It was further held that the woman had not encouraged the hugging.

Payment of the award was suspended for one week and the employer was asked to appear and give his views of the case.

A definite reason for extra value in our
USED CARS
When you buy a used car you should be sure the price is not put above the actual worth of the car, to allow the dealer to recoup an excessive trade-in allowance.
Under the Ford policy there is no incentive for this sort of practice—for the price of the New Ford car is so low and the value so high, that unreasonable trade-in concessions are hardly possible.
We allow the buyers of a Model A just what his old car is worth—and we offer that used car for sale on the same basis. Prices of our used cars are based on the service you will get from them. At present we are offering unusual bargains in unused transportation.

TAKE CALEDONIA MAN TO OHIO PEN TODAY

Charles E. Seckel Starts Three-Year Term for Theft of Money.

Charles E Seckel, 67, of Caledonia, was to be taken this afternoon to the Ohio penitentiary to begin a three-year term imposed on him for stealing money from Mrs. Amanda Smith, his neighbor.

Committment papers were drawn in the office of Clerk of Courts Everett B Grigsby this morning after the clerk had received information from the appellate court that Seckel's application for rehearing had been denied.

The delay in committment of Seckel was caused by the application for rehearing, filed early this week by Seckel's attorneys, and the failure of the attorneys and the prosecutor to agree on a journal entry on the case after the appellate court had affirmed the common pleas court in finding Seckel guilty

Entries drawn by both Prosecutor Russell M Wilhelm and Attorney W P Moloney, the latter representing Seckel, were submitted to the court when the attorneys failed to agree on an entry. The court this morning notified Clerk Grigsby that Prosecutor Wilhelm's entry had been approved.

Let's have a SHOWDOWN on this matter of TIRE COMPARISONS

WITH all the conflicting claims published about tires, it is obvious that misleading statements are being made. The only conclusion that you as a tire buyer can draw is that either we, as Firestone Dealers, are misrepresenting Firestone products, or that a certain mail order house is not telling the truth about theirs. Both can't be right—one or the other is misleading the public by their comparisons.

Firestone, in their advertising, only make comparisons that can be easily verified by the customer before buying tires. To attempt to substantiate the comparisons made by this mail order house, it would be necessary to go into a laboratory and employ experts.

The very reason that the comparisons made in Firestone advertising enable you to get the facts yourself, makes it unnecessary for Mr. Firestone to make affidavit on the truth of his statements or to file any complaint with the Federal Trade Commission, and then advertise it, in an attempt to lead the public to believe his statements were true.

Mr. Firestone doesn't ask you to accept comparisons about Firestone Tires and special brand mail order tires until you see the facts yourself. Neither do we. All we ask is that you make your own comparison.

We have cross sections cut from special brand mail order tires purchased from stocks of mail order house and from Firestone Tires—no "tricky" or misleading comparisons —come in today and make your own comparisons for Quality, Construction and Prices. YOU and YOU ALONE be the judge!

4 KILLED, 10 HURT IN SPANISH DISORDERS

Defense of Church Property Against Incendiarism Costs Lives.

By The Associated Press

GRANADA, Spain, May 16—Four persons were killed and 10 injured during the night at nearby Atarfe when residents of the little town attempted to defend their church against incendiarism.

Word was spread about Atarfe that a band of anti-church demonstrators were coming to burn their church, after having destroyed the convent at Santa Fe, and they gathered on the outskirts of the village to repel them.

They attempted to stop an automobile filled with men coming from the direction of Santa Fe, firing at it. Those in the car fired back at them, killing three of the townsmen as the car careened off to the side and ran into a wall. The chauffeur was killed.

Those riding in the automobile told authorities investigating the affair that they had had nothing to do with the attack on the Santa Fe convent, which was damaged but not destroyed, and that they had fired at the townsmen thinking them to be communists.

MADRID, May 16—Vigorous papal representations protesting the past week's destruction of Roman Catholic church property in Spain were under consideration today by the Republican government.

Perhaps by coincidence there was published also a statement by the minister of justice, Fernando De Los Rios, that the provisional government intended to bring about a separation of church and state, an attachment which has been maintained for centuries.

ant results for young Mr. Tao Hsuan Li, Chinese student, waiting at Ellis island yesterday for deportation to China. Mr. Li came here to study, liked bolshevist ideas, joined the communist party.

That sort of thing scares Uncle Sam, as a mouse scares a big elephant, and Li will be deported to China. He begs our government to send him to Russia, where he would be welcome, not to China, where he will be executed on his arrival. But the government says: "Sorry; we do not recognize Russia and therefore can not send you there."

American communists gathered at the river, near the Battery in New York, to deplore the student's fate. Police, according to reporters, found it necessary to club some of them, including two women. Communist ladies are sometimes violent. Police say they even scratch and bite.

TO DENY PERMITS FOR CONCESSIONS

Mayor Asks Residents To Remember Solemnity of Memorial Dedication.

No permits for concessions of any description will be granted by the city for June 16, the day of the dedication of the Harding Memorial, Mayor L. Don Jones said this morning.

"The dedication will not be a gala affair and it will be the intention of the city to make every effort to prevent any show of the carnival spirit," the mayor said.

No stands will be permitted on the streets and it is the hope of the mayor and other city officials that those living in the vicinity of the memorial, will refrain from putting up stands of any kind on their property.

While the erection of a refreshment stand, even on private property is forbidden in the residential district by the zoning ordinance and to erect one would require a pemit from the city planning commission, the mayor said this morning he would depend upon the pride of the residents, to refrain from erecting stands of any description.

The matter was discussed by the city advisory board in its first meeting in the office of Mayor Jones yesterday and each member of the board, composed of the heads of the various city departments, indicated their intention of discouraging wherever possible any act that would detract from the solemnity of the occasion.

GETS $300 FINE ON OLD LIQUOR CHARGE

Judge Disposes of Case To Clear Municipal Court Docket.

Bennie Houseworth of 556 Balentine avenue, arrested Dec. 23 of last year on an illegal possession charge, was fined $300 and costs by Municipal Judge William R. Martin in municipal court yesterday afternoon when he was found guilty of the charge.

The final disposition of the Houseworth case was withheld, Judge Martin said this morning, pending the outcome of appeals made by Herman Kalkbrenner and others who were arrested at about the same time and under similar circumstances and whose cases were carried up on the grounds that since the liquor was in a private home the authorities had no right, either with or without a search warrant, to enter the place unless in possession of evidence of selling.

Since the cases carried up are still pending, Judge Martin said this morning he had decided to wait no longer and wished to clear the docket. Houseworth was found guilty yesterday when patrolman testified that they had been watching his home for some time before making the arrest and had obtained evidence of selling.

ARREST NEAR IN OHIO UNDERWORLD KILLING

Massillon Wrestler Names Man He Says Shot Alleged Police Informer.

By The Associated Press

MASSILLON, O., May 16—A man who police said admitted driving the automobile used by the slayer of Jim Speros, 38, long a figure in Canton's underworld upheavals, was in custody today and the arrest of the alleged killed was expected hourly.

George Gotsoff, Massillon wrestler, gave himself up last night and according to Police Inspector Jack Burwell, declared George Tatalinos, described as an underworld character, killed Speros in self defense.

Speros, whose name was coupled with the investigation of the slaying of Don R. Mellett, Canton vice-crusading editor, four years ago, was shot to death as he sat in a coffee house at Columbia Heights, a suburb late yesterday. He was mentioned as a tipster for Mellett and since then the underworld regarded him as a carrier of information to federal prohobition agents, police said.

The killing followed an argument over $175 in "protection" money which Speros demanded from Tatalinos, Gotsoff said. Tatalinos indicated he might surrender later and plead self defense, Inspector Burwell said he was told by Gotsoff.

LAY CORNERSTONE OF NEW STATE BUILDING

Governor White and Former Governor Cooper Are Speakers in Ceremony.

We dedicate the public conscience, awakened to ideals of public service."

Former Governor Myers Y. Cooper, in his address, commended the state building commission for its work in connection with the new structure, and Attorney General Bettman for his untiring efforts in obtaining the site.

"This great project," he said, "represents a covenant made and kept—legislative enactment translated into concrete reality." The purpose of the building, recommended by him two years ago, was to afford proper housing for state departments, elimination of fire hazards, greater efficiency in concentration and savings of $150,000 annually in rentals, Cooper said.

Former Governors Vic Donahey, Harry Davis and James M. Cox had been invited to participate, but did not attend. Former Governor Cox is recovering in Miami, Fla., from a recent operation.

A copper box placed inside the cornerstone contained the names of the building commission, the governor, and members of the 88th and 89th general assemblies, 25 newspapers from all parts of the state containing stories about the structure, a history of the construction program and copies of the contract for the building and legislation for the structure.

ERIE WINS CASE IN $25,000 DAMAGE SUIT

Pittsburg, Pa., Jury Returns Verdict for Railroad Company.

A jury in federal court at Pittsburgh, Pa., has returned a verdict for the Erie railroad in a damage action brought against the road by John E. Schultz, seeking $25,000 for the loss of a leg, according to word received here today.

Twenty-five Marionites were called to Pittsburgh by the Erie as witnesses in the trial this week, which is the second time the case has been tried before a jury.

On Feb. 4, 1928 Schultz lost a leg in a mishop near the Kenton avenue crossing of the Erie railroad. He sued the company, and the case was tried before a federal jury in Pittsburg about a year ago.. In this trial, the judge directed a verdict for the railroad.

Appealing his case to the federal court of appeals, Schultz was successful in an effort to have the case ordered back for retrial on the grounds that the case should be decided entirely by the jury. It was at retrial that a jury again found in favor of the railroad.

Erie witnesses said Schultz was attempting to board a freight train at the time of the accident. He claimed that a wire protruding from a car pulled him under the train.

For them to keep the faith we try,
For them we struggle to be true,
For them we hold life's standard high,
In all we are, in all we do.

Although we think of them as gone,
In memory brave and true they stay,
Inspiring up to carry on,
And guiding us along the way.

Churches Must Look To Future, Speaker Declares

[illegible] S. Rice of Detroit Addresses Large Audience as [illegible] in Epworth M. E. Centennial Celebration; Tells of Bishop Quayle.

[illegible] Rice of Detroit [illegible] Metropolitan M. E. [illegible] one of the [illegible] in the [illegible] to a large [illegible] at Epworth [illegible] Skylark of [illegible] which he told of [illegible] friend the late Alfred Quayle of [illegible] a splendid, human picture of the life of one of the greatest of the Methodist bishops but there was in it a challenge to the youth of Epworth and the nation to keep their minds clean. "For God's sake, for your country's sake and for your own sake," were his words.

Forceful Speaker

Dr. Rice, in his dynamic, forceful and informal manner of speaking, held his audience for two hours with his glowing tribute to the man who saw God in everything, who had a great mind and kept it clean, to the man who kept wonder alive and to the man who loved everybody, and with his own personal observations of present day living

Bishop Quayle, of whom no one knew more than Dr. Rice in his personal contact with him, born in a moving wagon in Missouri, brought up on a Kansas farm with no one to encourage him in learning, got his education from four books, the almanac, Shakespeare's poems, the Bible and Webster's dictionary

Dr Rice in telling of his life, interspersed his story with humor that kept his audience interested and alert for what was to follow.

"If you get a big vocabulary, you've got to have a lot of sense to handle it," he said after speaking of Bishop Quayle's great love and study of the dictionary and his masterful command of the English language "The most interesting thing in the world today is to be a conversationalist, to know what you are talking about We don't have many of them today," Dr. Rice said, and added that his friend Bishop Quayle knew how to talk and to use words.

Points to Future

Dr Rice opened his lecture with the observation that the tomorrow of a church is more important than the today of the church.

"Epworth church will be a filling station tomorrow, unless it vindicates itself in the business it is called upon today," was one of the facts he drove home in urging that children must be taken into the church or it will die "There is no place for the church that does not watch the childhood of the church," he added.

People are not living in a friendly day, according to Dr. Rice as he recalled that it used to be that a person knew everyone. "We do not know people any more," he declared.

That Dr. Rice is a firm believer in "being yourself," he proved to his audience last night in his own personal comments and in his method of bringing his lecture to the audience, "We are not ourselves, and if we are we are considered peculiar," he said. "You are afraid of the functions of society, afraid to act and talk of anything that you would do yourselves."

He also touched upon the question of the influence of environment on the life of people, and said, "We do not know about environment because we do not know what the same environment will do on the same life. Environment on two different types of life will bring two different types of characters We have to have the thing environed before we talk about environment."

Dr. Rice held an informal reception at the close of his lecture. His talk last night was one of the closing programs of Epworth's week of centennial celebration. Sunday morning and night Bishop Edwin H. Hughes of Chicago will preach

The Power of God

A SERMONETTE

BY REV. J. E. DAVIDSON
Pastor First Church of Nazarene

MAN has been able to accomplish many things through his training and knowledge, but he has never been able to set aside the fact that there is a God in whom dwelleth all knowledge and all power His power has been manifested in creation, in Christ and in salvation

Creation is calling into existence that which had no previous existence Man cannot create Nature itself cannot create Instead of creating other things they themselves had to be created. God manifested His power when he created the world, formed the animal kingdom and made man in His own image. No one has ever been successful in trying to refute God's matchless creative power

Again we see His power manifested in Christ, His Divine Son. His conception by the Holy Ghost, the manner of His birth, the appearance of the star, the visit of the wise men, His disputation with the doctors in the temple, His baptism, the voice from heaven, the descent of the Holy Spirit, the testimony of John, the temptation in the wilderness, the parables spoken, the miracles wrought, the life He lived, His transfiguration His crucifixion, death, resurrection and ascension all in one grand harmony proclaim the power of God in providing in His Son a saviour for the world and a sanctifier for the church

If God has power to create, power to complete a plan of redemption, He also has power to save from the uttermost to the uttermost The Lord's hand is not shortened that He cannot save Behold, He is mighty to save and strong to deliver He is liable, willing and ready to convict, convert, regenerate and sanctify a human soul now If creation and the plan of redemption are perfect, it is unreasonable and unscriptural to suppose that God's power is limited in salvation. Our God is able to give a complete and perfect salvation to all who believe

From London comes word that it is understood there that the ninety-year-old tradition of the Cunard company, all of whose vessels have been christened with names ending in "ia," is to be broken, and the two 73,000-ton vessels to be added to its line are to be named "Princess Elizabeth" and "Princess Margaret Rose," after the daughters of the Duke and Duchess of York. Such a departure used to be deemed unlucky. Can it be that vessel owners are abandoning old-time superstitions?

Pork Brigade Already Active.

That which was very generally anticipated by those who have kept in touch with the trend of events year after year has materialized. The pork brigade is marshaling its forces to prevent the working of governmental economies at what, unmindful of the rights of taxpayers the country over, it considers its expense.

Hardly was the ink dry on the published stories of President Hoover's announcement, that the war department planned to reduce expense by abandoning and disposing of useless forts, World-war camps and military depots, before congressmen and local politicians in all the sections which might be affected, got busy. The concurrent announcement that naval coast stations and yards were being surveyed looking to the same end intensified this activity on the part of the foes of governmental retrenchment in expenditures and made it more widespread. The planned retrenchment on the part of the war department naturally aroused the major part of the opposition in the interior of the country, but the hint that obsolete and useless naval stations and yards were to go spread it to the seacoasts.

From Washington comes word that the war and navy departments are being bombarded with inquiries from federal lawmakers and politicans in the sections of the country in which army forts, posts, camps and depots and naval stations and yards are located regarding their specific plans for lightening the public burden. According to reports from the federal capital there will be a repetition of the same storm of protest, should the President persevere in his plan to wipe out useless expense in the two departments, which has marked every attempt by preceding administrations to dispose of army and navy tracts of realty which are not only useless, but worse than that; which are decided liabilities rather than assets, as recently set out in these columns.

It may be expected that every congressman who has an old fort, army camp, station or depot or a useless navy station or yard in his district and all the politicans in such districts will be arrayed as one man against the presidential plan and that there will be attempts at legislative log-rolling to influence other legislators, but the legislators who are maintaining their political fences at public expense in this way are so few compared with the legislative total that there can be little excuse for the latter should it permit the pork barrel minority to have its way and frustrate the very commendable plan of the President.

A Princely Business Analyst.

In the speech made by him in Manchester, which has come in for much favorable comment here in America as well as in Great Britain, the Prince of Wales called attention to one tendency of the times which for some years has been recognized by American manufacturers of many lines of goods, and is yearly becoming more generally recognized.

Reflecting his observations on his recent South American trip before a gathering of British business men, the prince expressed his belief that, so far as the purpose of trade is concerned, the durable character of British-made goods is more of a handicap than an asset. He said that the buying public was far more interested in the appearance, in the style, of an article than in its durability; that people were not seeking articles which would last a lifetime; that they became tired of a thing and sought a change, and he complimented American manufacturers for having come quickly to appreciation of this fact, with resultant profit to them.

The prince attributed the American method of advertising our wares as in part responsible for the fact that he saw American-made goods and articles predominantly displayed and in use on every side throughout South America, but he gave credit to American recognition of the fact that the world has undergone a change; that people today preferred to pay less for an article and cast it aside when it became somewhat worn for something new, rather than follow the old plan of buying that which would wear. People, he said, have got into the habit of "liking change for the sake of change," and he went on and asked: "Haven't we got that habit ourselves, and aren't we jealous when somebody we know has got a newer article than we have? The taste of the world is fast becoming as fickle as women's fashions."

The prince, of course, did not hold that this present-day tendency on the part of the buying public applied to all lines of goods. He pointed out that there were many lines in which durability was recognized as the chief essential; many lines in which the only changes made, or to be made, were improvements which would increase the effectiveness of the manufactured article, be it a tool or a heavy piece of machinery, but he did hold that it was the style, the finish, the refinements," to use a trade term, of American-made articles, which made such strong appeal to the South American people and caused them, boosted by our method of exploiting our wares, to hold a paramount place in the South American market.

The Manchester speech, had there been existence of doubt, has made plain that the heir to the British throne is not only a keen observer, but also a student of human nature as well; one who knows how to apply his ability as a psychologist and forcefully present his deductions as a result of that ability. Lastly, his speech made manifest his courage in presenting facts which could hardly pass as agreeable to a people wedded to long-established ways; facts which made manifest that they have been following the wrong course and must about-face if they would regain the place in the markets of the world which was lost to them during and following the World war.

Honest Debts.

Despite efforts to estop discussion of war debts during the recent meeting of the International chamber of commerce in Washington, the subject was mentioned frequently. The cancellationist group was in the fore, of course.

When United States credit was placed at the disposal of the Allies during the World war, many things that now seem strange were happening. Men were slaughtering each other and believing themselves to be helping civilization. Vast sums of money were being squandered. Everything was forgotten in the terrible rage that blinds hostile nations.

All that is forgotten now. Former enemies are working side by side, and praising each other. Nations are calm again, and ashamed of their former hysteria. Fiscal systems have been severely shaken, and not completely restored, but the war seems to have been a thing of long ago.

Enter the cancellationist, who reasons that because all else has been forgotten, war debts owing the United States should be forgotten too. It is galling for debtor nations to pay for a war which they wish to forget; it is hard for them to find money to pay at all, he says. Further, the United States, which happens to have more money than its debtors, is playing Shylock to an unfortunate group of nations which solicited its help and money in their hour of need. The group claims an effect on world trade conditions from payment of the debts, the cancellationist recites.

Argument of such character is futile and foolish. Europe has had its dance, and the piper must be paid. The United States has no wish to be harsh, but without its intervention and resources the map of the European continent might look different today.

If the debtor nations can pay their honest debts they should pay them without asking for cancellation. A moratorium has been provided to tide hard-pressed nations over depression, but no nation has yet had occasion to invoke it, which is fair proof that the payments haven't been intolerable. If America's debtors imagine that this nation should subsidize world trade by cancelling payments due it they are entertaining a queer idea.

If the New York City board of trade has its way, the long-established custom of throwing ticker tape and pages of telephone directories on visiting notables, and near-notables, will be abandoned. It's a mighty poor tribute to those showered; it's wasteful; it's expensive and it's idiotic.

Colonel Lindbergh holds that the airplane is going to prove the chief means of national defense. Maybe so, but it may be well not to overlook the fact that the colonel is liable to be slightly prejudiced.

Captain Frank M. Hawks, following his record flight from London to Berlin, flew from Berlin to Hamburg in fifty-five minutes, clipping thirty-five minutes off the record. Somebody should call the captain home. If he stays over there much longer, breaking record after record and halving many of them, he is liable to discourage European aviation circles.

Editorial Opinion.

THE PRINCE'S TRIBUTE.

Americans have often been criticised by the people of other lands for their habit of "telling the world" about the superiority of their country, their products and themselves, and it has to be admitted that there is much reason for this criticism. We are too much addicted to self-praise and particularly to the extravagant use of superlatives in relation to things American. The aphorism that "he who bloweth not his own horn, the same it shall not be blowed," has pretty general acceptance and application among us.

But the extreme manifestations of this trait, which most of us disapprove as strongly as do our alien critics, are but the overflowing of an aggressive spirit which expressed in relative moderation is of great value to the country. For example, there can be no doubt that it is largely by telling the world about our products through advertising and descriptive salesmanship that we have developed our enormous business at home and abroad. The American idea is that if you have something to sell you must let it be known, and let it be known in such a way as to impress the possible consumer with its value. The Prince of Wales is paying a reluctant tribute to this idea in his talks to British business men. The prince has made himself Britain's chief ambassador of trade, and he has just returned from a tour of South America where evidently he did a good deal more than extend a glad hand and a winning smile. He kept his eyes open and he discovered, as he says, that nearly everything the South American uses during his day is supplied by the United States. His office equipment, his desks, his typewriters, his telephones, are American. His American motor car takes him home where he finds an American radio instrument or phonograph. He goes out in the evening to see an American picture show, and sees everywhere on the streets, as well as in the newspapers and magazines, advertisements of American goods.

"I have heard," said the prince to a gathering of business men an Manchester, "a great many Englishmen say that the American way of boosting their goods and the American form of publicity is very vulgar. That is entirely a matter of opinion. The fact remains that our friends in the United States get away with it. To use one of their phrases, they can put the goods across. If we wish to push our goods better we will have to take a leaf out of their book."

Far be it from us to say that this is good advice, but obviously the Prince of Wales thinks it is, and no one knows the British traditions and British mind better than he. There is no insularity about the prince, and he has no overburdening reverence for the past or for the long-established customs and methods of British trade. He is deeply concerned with today and tomorrow and is not averse to his country copying whatever may be found good in the methods of other countries. It is gratifying to know that he is favorably impressed by American methods, particularly so in view of the fact that his countrymen, as he says, have been inclined to regard them as vulgar. It will be interesting to see the effects, if any, of the prince's candid advice.—St. Louis Globe-Democrat.

SPIES AND SUSPICIONS.

Sandwiched in between advance stories on the next disarmament conference comes a dispatch from Paris that throws an interesting light on the possibilities of success awaiting that gathering. The French government has been building a line of fortifications along both the German and Italian frontiers, which it expected to make impregnable. And now it leaks out that the location and strength of every pill-box, trench, underground hospital and barracks has been known to the general staffs of at least half a dozen European countries almost as fast as the concrete was poured into them. Thanks to their spies the military authorities in those countries know all that is to be known about France's defensive "walls."

It is almost incredible that a vigilant government in Paris would have permitted such a thing to happen. The French police have discovered that of 700 laborers on a major unit of the fortifications only eleven were French citizens. The others were Germans, Italians, Poles and Russians. Such a condition makes spying easy. As fast as the agents of France's neighbors got the necessary information they dropped out of employment and sight.

The incident does not strengthen one's confidence in the ability of the approaching disarmament conference to make much headway. The fact that France's potential enemies are keeping such a close eye on her movements is no more significant than the suspicion of their motives shown by her extensive investment in fortifications. As long as fears and suspicions dominate nations and their governments it is going to be difficult for the dove of peace to find a place to rest her wings.—Detroit Free Press.

Good Sense in Eating.

BY ROYAL S. COPELAND, M. D.

There is a group of gall bladder and liver disturbances that are uncomfortable ailments. They may be caused by infection, formation of stones which cause mechanical obstruction, or by faulty diet.

Many liver and gall bladder disturbances may be due entirely to improper diet, in most cases of gall bladder disease, particularly in acute catarrhal jaundice, there is usually a long history of dietary neglect. This may be the only apparent cause.

Persons who are overfond of fried, salty, greasy foods, rich gravy, and dishes exceedingly rich in fat, are particularly likely to have such disturbances. Indeed, many a man digs his grave with his teeth.

Gall bladder conditions are most frequently found in women who have had several children and who have passed the age of forty. It is the custom among medical men to refer to this group as "fair, fat and forty." This is often an accurate description of individuals who complain of liver or gall bladder upsets.

It must be admitted that the importance of diet in relation to various ailments may have been overstated. As a matter of fact, this possible factor has been stressed in all conceivable ailments.

Of course, I do not wish to minimize the importance of good sense in eating. In the group of ailments I have mentioned, however, diet does play an important part.

For such persons it is important to avoid foods that are rich in fat, or which are fried or greasy. Butter may be included in the diet, but only in small amounts.

Foods, like eggs, that are rich in certain chemical substances, are to be avoided. Sugars and starches must be taken in moderation.

In general, where these ailments threaten, avoid the following foods: Eggs, peas, white beans, cauliflower, Brussels sprouts, radishes, cucumbers, cabbages, sauer kraut and onions. Pies, pastries, cakes and puddings are to be excluded from the diet. Any food that is known to cause digestive disturbances should be avoided.

Excessive eating is never advisable, but must be avoided in these troubles. It is wise to eat frequently, perhaps, and a little at a time. Water should be consumed at each meal. At least six or eight glasses of water per day is recommended.

All tendency toward constipation should be overcome. Regular elimination is essential. This can be accomplished by regularity in meals. Be sure to eat plenty of fresh fruits and vegetables.

Byrd's Flight Over South Pole.

BY ARCHIBALD HENDERSON.

The conditions in the Antarctic make the problem of determining the South pole a matter of very exceptional difficulty. Of course modern radio equipment was an important factor in decreasing these difficulties. Through this means and time signals from a known meridian, the setting of the sun compass to any desired meridian is possible. Starting on that meridian, the plane was kept on that meridian, so far as possible, by the sun compass. Unfortunately, the plane was subject to a heavy drift sideways, although always maintaining a determined direction. By means of the speed and drift indicator, the angle of this drift was kept trace of and provided for, thus holding the plane roughly along the meridian.

Two methods had to be resorted to in order to determine the speed of the plane over the ground. The method to be employed, at any given time, depended upon the accuracy with which the plane's height above the ground could be determined. When this height is known with sufficient accuracy, the observation consists in timing the passage of some mark on the ground over the two wires of the instrument, whose distance apart has been set to conform to a scale reading elevation above the ground. The mathematical principle is simple enough, that of similarity of triangles; but if the assumed height of the plane is in error, this error will enter in the result in a direct ratio.

The difficulties arose when the height of the plane was not known. This was determined by altimeter readings and also by the known elevations of the plateau, which had been determined by Amundsen and Scott. The latter were subtracted from the former; but the results of Amundsen and Scott were not in accord. They were, however, the anly elevation data available for this region and were entered on a data chart for the South polar flight.

A second method for determining the plane's speed was resorted to by Byrd with good results. Three quantities, the false speeds forward and back, and the air speed, are set in a mathematical formula. From this formula the true ground speed ahead is determined.

In observations of this sort, dependence was placed upon the instruments. But the accuracy of the results depended in no small degree upon the experience and skill of the observers. Byrd and McKinley had had considerable experience in these matters, and developed unusual skill in making the observations. They checked upon each other's results, using different instruments.

The position of the astronomical station at Little America had been determined with an accuracy of better than one mile. The clocks had been carefully and repeatedly checked, by means of radio time signals.

In the course of the flight the plane was placed on the 171st meridian at parallel eighty-six degrees, thirteen minutes, and the sun compass set for a course along the meridian to the pole, computed to be 227 miles away. Two checks were had on the compass for locating the direction of the meridian—one a simple instrumental check, the other with Amundsen's determination of the variation of the magnetic needle.

According to the official report of the scientific committee of the American Geographical society, at some point in his flight Byrd came within four nautical miles of the South pole, with the probability that he passed much nearer than this.—Copyright, 1931, King Features Syndicate, Inc.

Woman's Rights in Ohio.

BY J. H. GALBRAITH.

Woman's advancement into the possession and exercise of political rights has been most pronounced in very recent years, but changes most to her advantage and well-being took place in this state a little earlier, without attracting half the attention.

For many years in the early history of Ohio the married woman had practically no property rights. She took a child's share in her father's estate just as her brothers did, to be sure, where the father died intestate, and could take bequests under a bill, but when she married, control of this passed to the hands of her husband.

The income from her property went to her husband, and he had the disposition of both the property and its earnings. In the opening year of the Civil war this state gave to married women the right to receive, hold and dispose of property in their own names. It was not until 1884, the year Grover Cleveland was first elected to the presidency, that married women were given the right to sue and be sued in their own names; were first accorded the elementary right of citizens, though still unable to vote.

It is a singular fact that there was no such organized rebellion among women in the state against this early withholding of property rights from them, as there was against their deprivation of the right to vote. As those who are old enough to recall will remember, the extension of this right was made by the men of the state on their own accord, and for the reason it seemed to them unjust not to do so.

It is interesting to note that at no time did the state omit to collect taxes from property belonging to women, even when controlled by others; taxes must be paid on it by some one and of course the taxes came out of the income from the property. It was in 1896 that women were given the right to vote in this state at school elections. They secured equal suffrage by the federal constitutional amendment of 1920. The state had already given them presidential suffrage.

New York Day by Day.

BY O. O. M'INTYRE.

New York, May 16—The rest of my evenings in town this summer will be spent at home. I may go down to the corner for a soda now and then, but that will be all. Other fellows can have a night out with the boys, come home owl-eyed at dawn and be at their desks on time all merry and bright.

But without taking a single drink I can step out for an hour or so and the next day I'm likely to be on crutches. A gang of roughnecks dropped in about 10 last night, just when I was ready to climb into pajamas and skim through the last chapters of a mystery book.

They wanted to go places, ring doorbells and all that and accused me of becoming a soured, old recluse, a dithering dodo. "What you need, you wrinkled prune," cracked one, "is to cut loose for an evening. See the bright lights, wear a paper cap and make a fool of yourself."

So I went along. The first stop was a speakeasy, one of those respectable-looking private homes with a sedate front parlor and a full-blown bar two flights up. Everybody seemed to be whooping it up, including a cock-eyed, bare-legged lady on a table top, strumming a uke and singing "Room 202."

I pushed my way with the rest up to the bar and ordered a sarsaparilla. "Dilute it," piped a smart alec, "and wrap up a chocolate eclaire to take out." That's the sort of crowd I was with. Trying to be a good fellow, and everything I did was wrong.

At length I invited rather cautiously: "Have one on me!" And a voice artesianed with trombone overtones: "That's the stuff. Everybody step up. Old thin ribs is going to buy." At this, the army and navy in mufti seemed to step into the room. They must have come out of the woodwork.

Getting in this deep, I decided to go the limit being a good fellow and started to tell a funny story. Before I got half way to the point a chiseler lurched up, slapped my shoulder and, faking an uproarious laugh, shouted: "That's a hot one. I'll have another quart of wine."

• • •

Twice I made the check room in efforts to get away, but each time was dragged back, shoved into a chair with an ominous: "You started out for a night of it and you are going to stick. And like it." About this time one of my rowdies began to blubber. He was misunderstood at home. Would I telephone and explain he was with me—just sitting around talking about old times? And did I snag on an educated human iceberg! You could tell by her voice she was very high handshake. After I stumbled through my lie, she said coldly: "A couple of lambrequins and a pet armadillo to you! Shake him out of his stupor and pour him into a taxi. And the next time you try to be bright remember to use more than one brain cell. Anatomists say every one has more than 12,000,000 you know." What round is this?

Well, after driving hither and yon with a lot of singing stews we wound up in one of those all-night Broadway gyms. I have never been in one before, and if I ever get unkinked depend on it I will never be again. We got into running pants and worked out with a medicine ball and then somebody suggested wrestling. Somebody would on my first night out in seven years.

Then of a sudden he tossed me aside like a rag doll and in broken English explained: "He not vera whatyoucall strong!" —the big Portuguese palooka.

Washington, May 16—In a little one-room office in the senate office building which seems hardly large enough to accommodat his big frame, former Senator Tom Heflin i keeping an eye on the progress being made i his election contest.

Given this office space through courtesy o the senate until its committee has investigat ed charges of irregularities in the Alabama election which removed him, Heflin appear the militant and colorful figure of old.

He is in good spirits and always will take enough time to talk and joke with those who call by to see him. His sartorial elegance— cream-colored waistcoat, frock coat and be ribboned spectacles—so much a part of him as a senator, has not changed.

And his belief that he will yet "feast on Bankhead's bones" and that the senate committee will uncover "frauds in the Alabama election which will shock the nation" is a strong as ever.

• • •

But, regardless of whether Heflin emerge the victor in this contest, few believe that th former Alabama senator is through with pu lic life. Eighteen years in the house of re resentatives, followed by ten years in the se ate, are not so easily forgotten—especially f a man like Heflin.

That he has plans for a come-back whic extend further than his contest with John I Bankhead is not at all improbable.

There are those who believe that the prima elections in 1932 will find him among tho present. Just what office he will be seeki is not so certain.

There are two courses he might follow. The comparatively young Alabama senat Hugo Black, of Birmingham, will be up f reelection in 1932. Black offered Heflin litt comfort in his efforts to have a senatorial vestigation of the 1930 election. Some s that he might attempt to crowd Black out 1932.

• • •

There is a possibility that he might try stage a comeback by the house route. His district—the Fifth—kept him in the house nine terms. That seat is now held by LaF ette Patterson.

But, whatever his plans for the future action in the short session of the sev first congress might be taken to mean he has something like this in mind. He not sit quietly by. That's not the Heflin w of doing things.

He introduced bills seeking to combat depression and unemployment problems a had a lot to say about these and a great ma other subjects.

The people of Alabama will not forget H lin—not if "Cotton Tom" has anything to about it.

Long and Short of It.

ELECTRICITY WOMAN'S AID

C., D. & M. Appliances Enable Housewives To Make Cooking a Pleasure.

Why not an electric range? In this modern age of economy of effort and time our every move is toward greater efficiency. If this is sound business policy why not apply it to the home? Nothing will be more helpful to mother. First of all electric cooking is clean. A man's idea of cleaning a pot or pan may be to dip it in water and "cook it dry"—mother's idea is different, she scrubs it and that's hard dirty work—then again your stove has no odor—no soot — no smudge — you cook with heat, not flame, so your whole kitchen stays clean.

Comfort Is Aim

To work with the flame type of fuel is to work over excessive heat. In fact, the whole room is unnecessarily hot—cooking with an electric range is cool—the room is pleasant to work in and working about the range is comfortable.

With an electric range you are working with controlled temperatures—no "oven-peeping" is necessary—your oven doesn't even have a flue so that your temperatures are constant and, because of that, baking and broiling are possible at the same time.

In addition to heat control you have time control—you need not be home to either start or stop your oven—simply set the time switch for either or both purposes and you need not be home to start cooking the meal or stop cooking it when it is done—in the well insulated "Hot-Point" range you can return an hour later and have a piping hot meal ready to serve.

Advantages Apparent

Sum up these, and the many other advantages to mother, in this most practical cooking device and if it cost more, you would still want her to have it. But now thanks to our new low cooking rates she can enjoy this modern convenience at no more cost than any other type of fuel.

"Dad" would demand an electric range. Why not show mother the same consideration?

USE NEW IDEA IN SELLING OF LUMBER

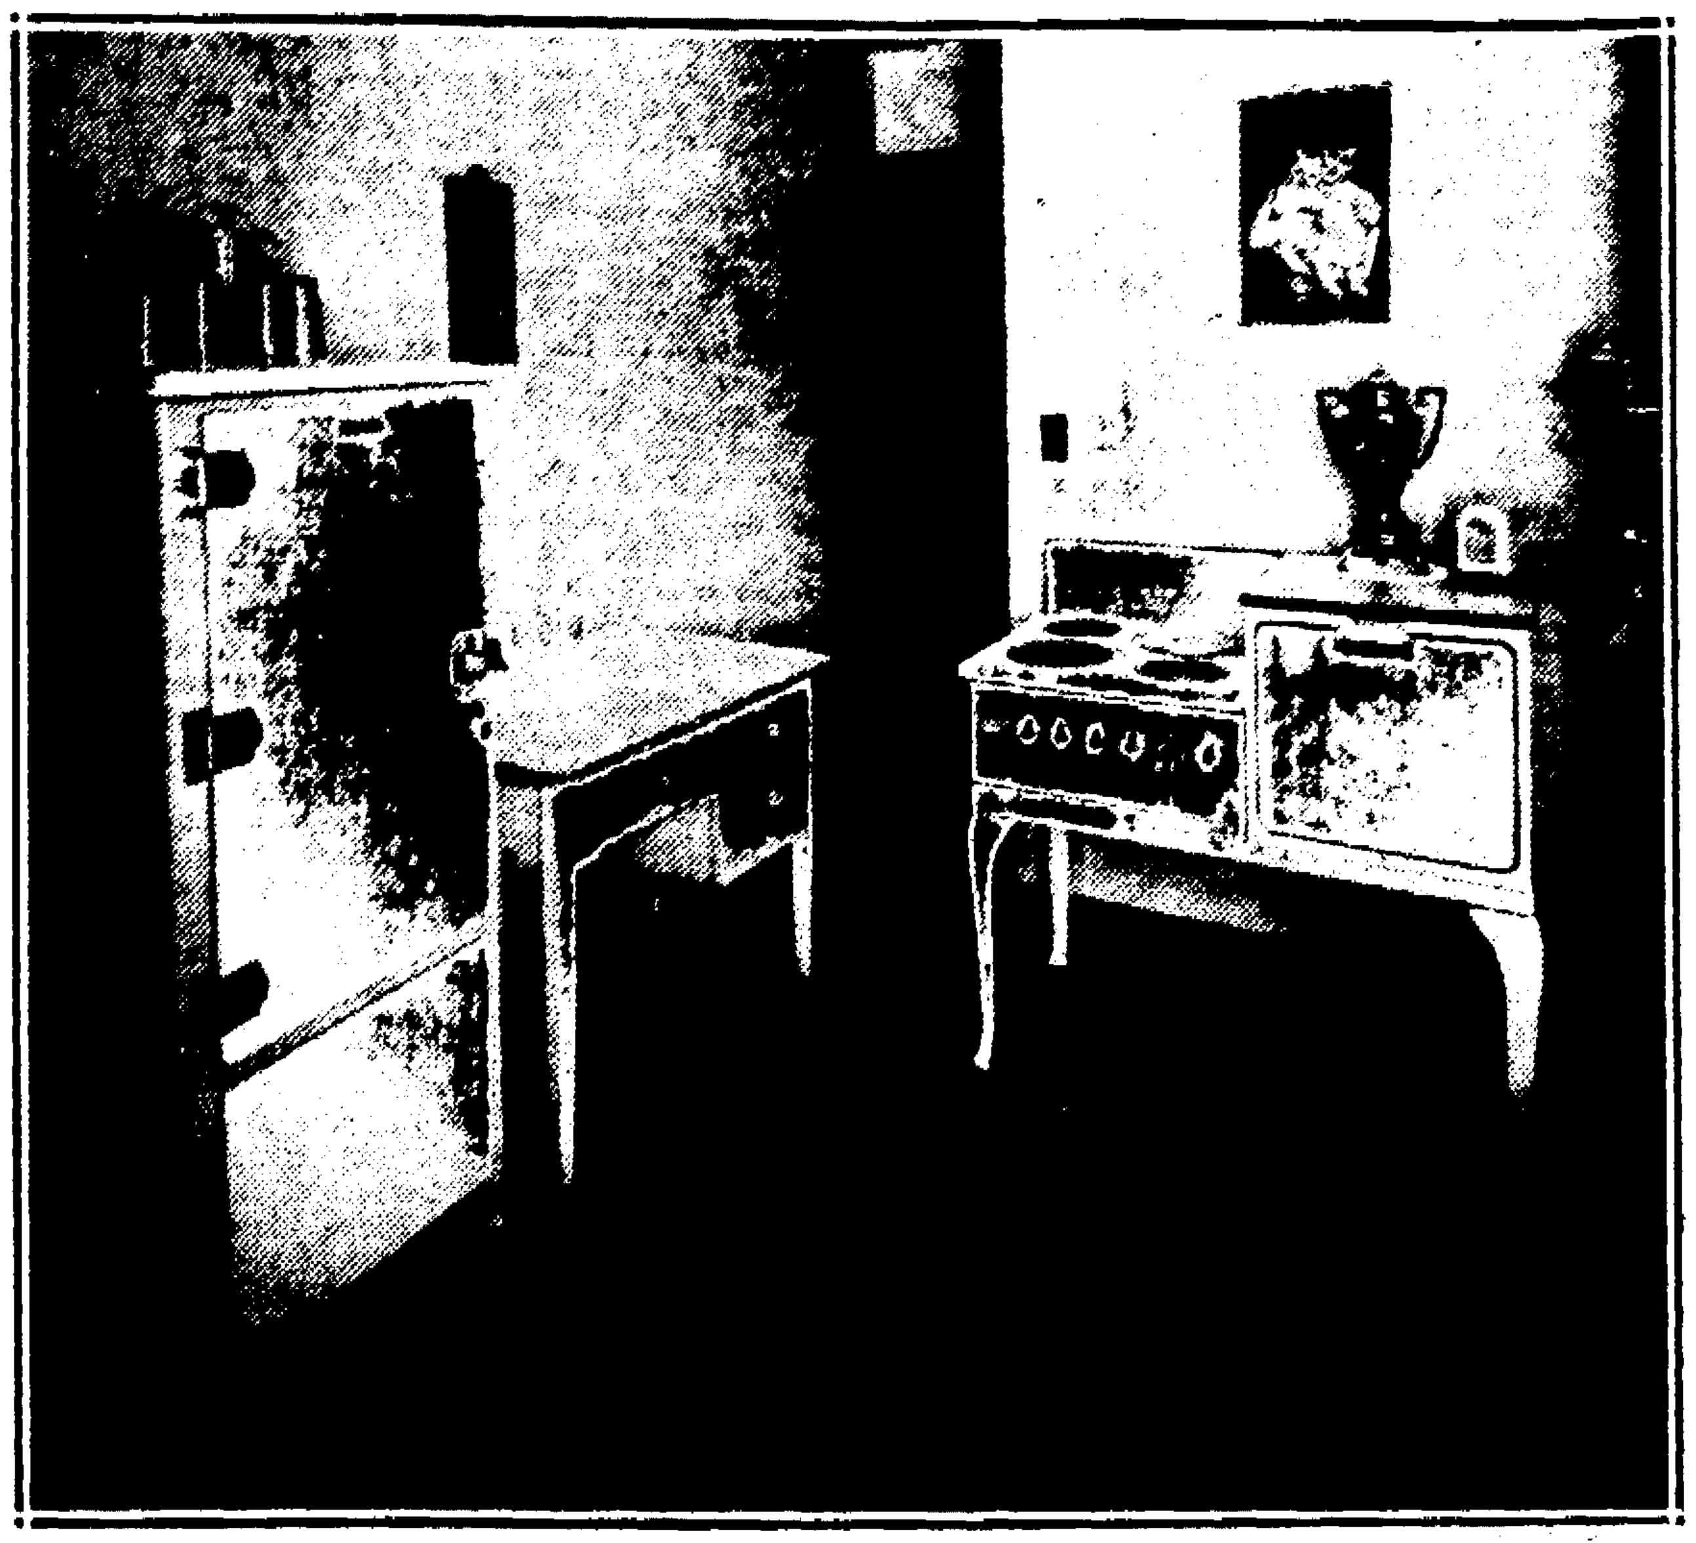
Standard Length Pieces All Machine Squared Save Time and Money.

An innovation in lumber merchandising is the four-square packaged lumber. Four-square lumber is protected from dirt, damage, endchecking and depreciation. It is machine-squared at the mill. Each piece is exactly the standard length designated on the label. These squared ends and full lengths save the cost of needless hand trimming on the job.

Whether you are going to build a home, or need a few boards for little jobs around the house, come to our yard and inspect four-square plus value lumber. The Avenue Lumber & Supply Co. is always glad to show how you can get better results at a definite saving.

Properly seasoned, manufactured to exact standards, the lumber in the four-square package is ready to go right into good construction.

SCENE OF MODERN KITCHEN



The kitchen above is in the new home of Mrs. George Myers of Barks avenue. The electric "Hotpoint" range is one of the highly prized features of this completely electrified kitchen. Mrs. Myers is especially pleased with the economy and convenience of the "Hotpoint" and is surprised at the number of ways food may be prepared in the oven at the same time. The automatic time control is one of the features that "sold" Mrs. Myers on the "Hotpoint."

C., D. & M. DEALERS FOR HOTPOINT LINE

New Calrod Unit Considered Great Achievement of General Electric.

Another great General Electric Hotpoint achievement! The widespread success of the 6½-inch (utility size) Hi-Speed calrod surface unit inspired the development of this giant (8½-inch) 2100 watt "high-speed" Calrod unit—a large size unit for large utensils. It brings a new service to modern mothers—"hi-speed" quantity cookery. The unit combines "hi-speed" with remarkable durability. Its improved Calrod construction permits successful operation at a much higher temperature than would be practical with an old style coil unit. It is practically indestructible. The use of stainless steel (nickel-chromium alloy steel) protective tubing in this new unit is a great improvement over Calorized steel tubing. It is much more durable, provides a more level surface and eliminates magnetic hum. It is sold in Marion by the C., D. & M. Electric Co.

The unit consists of two large spirals of Calrod. They glow with a red heat and come in direct contact with the utensil without any intervening air space. No brick is needed. The Calrod and the cooking utensil itself take its place. This results in a unit of unbelievable speed and economy.

The heating coils have heavy knife blade terminals which enter sturdy contacts located in a cool place. A coil can be inserted or removed in a moment without the use of any tools.

The unit ring is finished with lasting, untarnishing chromeplate.

This interchangeable unit fits in the standard 10⅝-inch surface opening on any old style or new General Electric Hotpoint ranges.

It is now standard equipment on all General Electric Hotpoint ranges.

The 6½-inch hi-speed Calrod range surface unit, which won its way into thousands of homes, is now made with stainless steel protective tubing—insuring greater durability, a much more level cooking surface and freedom from magnetic hum.

Utility size—it fits four out of five home cooking utensils. This interchangeable unit is now standard equipment on all General Electric Hotpoint ranges.

PROMINENT SPEAKERS

CHICAGO, Ill.—The men who will address the coming Baltimore convention of the National Association of Real Estate Boards have biographies that read like a Who's Who of American Business. Practically all of the speakers who will appear before this annual meet in the period from May 27 to 30 are engaged in commerce or trade, and their job is to bring conservative forecasts, new ideas, and workable suggestions to some 2,000 real estate dealers who are expected to crowd the Convention hall.

The world consumption of coal has increased only four per cent in 15 years.

NO BOTHER

Hotpoint Electric Ranges Take Drudgery Out of Cooking.

Many housekeepers may now address their stoves, "Goodbye, dinner I'm going out now. I want you to start cooking at 4 o'clock . . . and stop at 5:30. Keep an even 400 degrees for that hour and a half. Be sure to brown yourself prettily—and keep basted so that you will be delicious, too."

You, too, can save time this way . . . time for rest, recreation or other household duties. For that's all there is to cooking with a General Electric hotpoint range. The C., D. & M. Electric Co. will send you a booklet which will delight you with vistas of the most convenient, cleanest, time-saving cookery you could imagine. It's like rubbing Aladdin's lamp and getting your wish. You'll quickly understand why over a million women are already cooking this fast, economical, new electric way.

Lower Prices Gained by Competitive Bids

Competition between contractors is the oldest method of reducing costs in building, but in the case of a high grade contractor bidding against a contractor classed as "cheap" the superior concern is at a disadvantage. If good contractors are selected to bid for the privilege of building your home the method is a wise and fair one to follow. In this case the comparison of prices is drawn between products of a like nature and with the correspondingly high standard of quality it becomes safe to rely on the low bidder.

Do not attempt to lower costs of building by substituting poor workmanship or poor materials, for that would be poor economy.

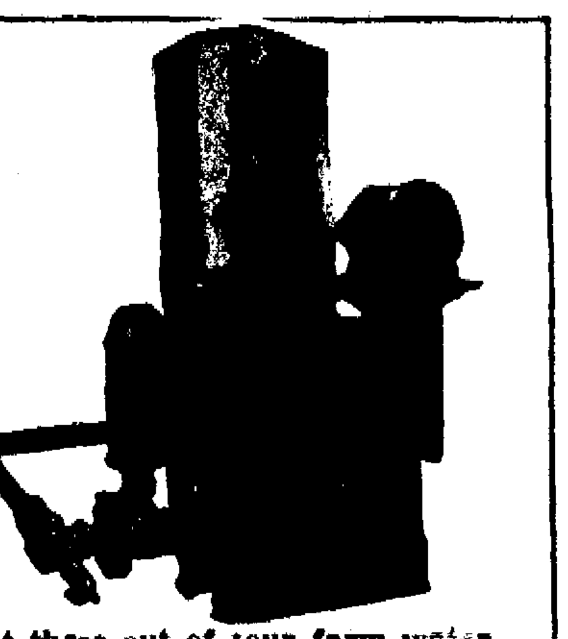
Running Water for Health's Sake



Government surveys indicate that three out of four farm water supplies are impure enough to be unsafe. Add to this the risk of exposure when carrying water in severe weather. Vital reasons these, why you need piped water on your farm.
With a Goulds water system you can be sure of pure water—and you are spared the risks of outside pumping. Its cheaper to buy a water system than it is to pay for sickness.

MILLARD HUNT CO. BUILDING MATERIAL

CONTRACTORS, FARMERS, HOME OWNERS FIND HUNT CO. GOOD PLACE TO BUY

A plant well equipped with modern machinery helps the Millard Hunt Co., dealers in coal, building and allied materials maintain its 13-year-old slogan, "Quality Material and Service to the Citizens of Marion."

Included in the up-to-date equipment of the plant are electrically-operated loading and unloading machines for handling coal, stone, gravel and other materials of like nature. The speed and efficiency with which the machines operate enables the firm to fill orders promptly.

View of Yards

The picture above shows the coal and rough aggregate department of the plant. By rough aggregate is meant such material as stone, gravel and sand for building purposes.

The equipment shown in the picture, which includes overhead bins and loaders, has been in use for the last three years and has proven its worth in speeding up the delivery of materials. Material is accurately weighed as it is loaded.

Material for many city streets as well as state and county highway projects has passed through these bins. One of the most recent highway projects for which this firm furnished material was the reconstruction of the Harding highway from the Marion city limits to Five Points, four miles east.

The company's service to the public does not end, however, with prompt attention to orders for coal, stone, sand and gravel.

Large Tile Stock

Building contractors, farmers and city residence owners have found it convenient to look to the firm to provide them with sewer pipe and drain tile. The large stock of the concern includes pipe and tile and all fittings in sizes from three to 24 inches.

Fireproof building materials are also important items in the large list handled by the concern. A large warehouse at Mill and Oak streets is given over entirely to these materials.

The manufacture of concrete blocks, flue caps, flue blocks and cistern tops is quite an item with the company.

A storage tank and electric pumps, greatly facilitate the handling of a high grade fuel oil which can be used for heating plants or for fuel engines.

Among the recent projects for which the company has furnished material are the Firestone super-station, Lusch super-station, Harding highway and the new Oakland Junior High school.

The Millard Hunt Co., starting this season, is giving to its customers a new service in the way of a furnace cleaning department. Through this department you may have your furnace cleaned by expert workmen at a minimum cost.

Investigations conducted by government research laboratories have shown that 98 per cent of all heating complaints are due to improper condition of equipment. Do you realize that clean furnace is essential if your heating system is to function efficiently — that one-eighth inch of ashes is as effective in retarding heat radiation as five-eights inch of asbestos

Scientifically speaking, a dirty furnace is not only a mean thing to look at—it burns extra coal uselessly, and nobody wants to do that,

Fortunately, this company is equipped with a super-vacuum furnace cleaner and wishes you to enjoy to the fullest extent, the advantages of good clean anthracite or bituminous coals. Why not let this company clean your furnace now? A clean furnace will positively reduce your coal bill. Ask them to tell you more about it.

TO SHOW FILM

CHICAGO, Ill. — Col. William Starrett, president of the Starrett Corp. of New York City, who will be one of the headliners on the program of the industrial division at the Baltimore meeting of the National Association of Real Estate Boards, has had a special film prepared to show in connection with his address.

Cost of Home Financing Shows Great Reduction

The cost of financing a home in Ohio is less today than it was 10 or 15 years ago despite the fact that the selling cost of most commodities is higher and the service charge of utilities many fold greater. That the general trend of home financing costs has been downward while the cost of most other public services has been upward has just been disclosed by James A. Devine, secretary of the Ohio Building Association League.

Borrowers paid as high as 30 per cent for home financing funds 50 years ago, money at that time being auctioned off to the highest bidder. Building and loan companies today have pared loaning costs to the lowest figure in their 67 years of experience, the Ohio loan survey points out.

Less Home-Minded

Proof is offered by building and loan leaders that lack of construction at the present time is not due to the lack of lenient financing terms. Much of that lethargy may be blamed justly on the fact that the buying public today is less home-minded.

"Make your home loan payment first—from the top of the purse," is the daily advice of home financing leaders to home borrowers. Building and loan officers realize that no matter how one stretches income to meet outgo, somtimes there are left-over bills. In such a situation "something must wait," but building and loan officers insist that "that something should never be the home loan payment."

Of the 400,000 home loan borrowers in Ohio, less than one per cent are failing to make their payments regularly. Most delinquents, through persuasive collection methods, seldom get more than three months in arrears, and for those who do, "foreclosure" stares them in the face.

In the statement urging prompt payment on the part of home loan borrowers, the building and loan statement points out that eventually the borrower will thank the lending institution for insisting upon promptness of payment. Paying regularly for a home is the world's safest known form of saving. It puts you on your own payroll. It is an investment in love and laughter and happiness. In this connection figures announced by the Ohio Building Association League show that 90 per cent of the people who reach 65 years of age with $5,000 or more have managed to retain this much wealth because it was invested in a home.

Monthly Pay Basis

In asking for regularity of home payments, the building and loan survey shows that a loan for $1,000 at seven per cent pays out in twelve years and eight months, and of the total amount of money paid in only 34.4 per cent is charged to interest.

Practically all of the 400,000 loans on the books of Ohio building, loan and savings companies now are on a monthly pay basis. The straight loan is being fast eliminated. The past several years has shown that the loan made on a monthly pay basis is seldom foreclosed—that once the borrower begins reducing his liability, he refuses to let his property go by default. Home loan payments made Ohio building and loan companies at this time will average approximately $10,000,000 monthly.

CHICAGO, Ill. — Present home buying shows a strong preference for houses around $5,000. A price ranging from $6,000 to $6.900 for the home, land and building together, is proving most popular.
